

I have been working with Rosie now for over a year and in that time she has saved me some money and a whole lot of time and stress.

Initially I approached Rosie about her bookkeeping services but it soon became apparent that while she is a very competent and capable bookkeeper, that is not Rosie's most valuable contribution to my business. What Rosie is great at is SORTING STUFF OUT. If I have something that I need doing I know I can delegate that to Rosie, often with only a high level brief in terms of the outcome I want to achieve, and she just makes it happen. That kind of support is invaluable for a busy business owner.

In fact I am now introducing Rosie to my clients so she can help them too – as a business coach I help people increase the profits in their business while freeing up their time from working in the business. And being able to introduce them to someone of Rosie's experience and ability who can come in and help them in a hands-on, pragmatic way to systemise how their business management operates is a real plus.
